Holdouts may pose problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite claims of complete control of South Vietnam, the new revolutionary government and Hanoi still may have the problem of continued holdouts and vestigial guerrilla units from remnants of the Vietnamese army, official sources report.

The sources say some military units in the Mekong Delta, including those from the Hoa Hao and Cao Dai religious sects, may still be holding out.

Other groups east of Dalat and among the Montagnards in the central highlands also may have melted into the hills to await further action without surrendering their arms.

However, there is no military leader at this point who could unify these diverse units.

Anti-Communist guerrillas would face many difficulties, particularly in finding a constant source of supply.

In the past, South Vietnamese told American officials that if the Viet Cong came to Saigon they would go to the lairs of the VC.

Some of this thinking is believed to be operating now.

The new bosses of South Vietnam who came from a guerrilla warfare background have moved swiftly to stop an insurgency before it can develop. It is believed this is one of the reasons they demanded that South Vietnam's last president, Duong Van "Big" Minh, disband the army and the administrative apparatus of the Vietnam government.

The new revolutionary government is expected to move slowly in consolidating its forces.

The Provisional Revolutionary Government — PRG as it was known before taking power — was not a government in the full sense of the word. It was more of a cabinet with only 125 people in top positions.

At the grass roots areas where the Viet Cong held control, there were revolutionary committees.

But there was no in-between bureaucracy connecting the revolutionary committees at the bottom and the PRG command at the top, according to analysts here.

Now, it is expected that new revolutionary committees will be established not only at all village levels but also in the big cities such as Saigon, which has been renamed Ho Chi Minh City. One revolutionary committee is being formed for each 3,000 people.

Based on past experience and on Communist doctrine, the prognosis for South Vietnam is a rough, mean and probably bloody transformation into a Communist state. The main hope here is that the new rulers are sensitive to world public opinion.

Reds demand return of ships, airplanes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hanoi and Saigon today demanded that all combat planes and ships taken out of South Vietnam be returned, but Thailand said it would leave a decision on 130 planes and helicopters on its soil up to the United States.

A Hanoi broadcast said the Foreign Ministry of the Revolutionary Government in Saigon charged that "dozens of warships, freighters, and hundreds of cargo and combat planes" were taken away.

It said all property inside and outside of South Vietnam — including gold — owned by the defeated Saigon regime belongs to the Vietnamese people and is at the disposal of the new government under international law.

In other developments:

—Official French sources reported in Paris that the Khmer Rouge have destroyed several foreign embassies in Phnom Penh and no foreign mission was functioning in the Cambodian capital. A spokesman for President Valery Giscard d'Estaing said he was deeply concerned about the fate of a truck convoy supposedly bringing 610 foreigners from the French Embassy to the Thai border.

—A South Vietnamese spokesman said 103,000 enlisted men and noncommissioned officers taken prisoner around Da Nang have been released to their homes.

—The Viet Cong's Liberation radio reported that President Duong Van "Big" Minh told Viet Cong officials that former President Nguyen Van Thieu tried to get away from South Vietnam with a large amount of gold "but we stopped him" from taking the gold out.

—A last group of 3,703 Vietnamese refugees was flown from the the Utapao Air Base in Thailand, ending an American airlift operation to remove Vietnamese refugees from Thailand to Guam, American sources in Bangkok said.

—U.S. congressional leaders are expected to start work next week on a new bill to approve aid to Vietnamese refugees after rejecting one proposal Thursday because it included authorization for use of American military forces in the already completed evacuation.

North Vietnam's official newspaper Nhan Dan rejected U. S. claims of ownership of "planes, warships and other property of South Vietnam" taken to Thailand by fleeing Vietnamese officers.

It said the Thai government "must hand over to the PRG these aircraft and warships, and in the meantime, it has the duty to take care of them."

The Thai government at first said that the aircraft would be returned to Vietnam. But today, after pressure from Washington, Thai Defense Minister Pramarn Adireksarn said disposal of the aircraft was the responsibility of the United States.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger said Thursday, "The United States retains title to all aircraft that have been given under assistance programs."

New aid bill expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders expect to begin work next week on a new bill that approves aid to Vietnamese refugees but omits any authorization for using U.S. troops in refugee evacuations.

Chairman Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., of the House International Relations Committee said his panel may start soon on such a bill but that he wants the administration's determination of how much money is needed.

House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill said, "There is no reason in the world the Committee on International Relations can't bring in" such a bill next week.

The resolve to start anew follows the House vote Thursday rejecting a bill for $327 million in refugee aid and authority for President Ford to use troops in the evacuation, which already was completed. The bill was voted down 246 to 162.

Opponents of the bill claimed it would have permitted Ford to send U.S. troops back to Vietnam while others expressed concern that some of the aid destined for refugees still in Vietnam would fall into the hands of the conquering Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces.

The House action evoked a strong response from Ford, who urged the House and Senate "to approve quickly new legislation providing assistance.... To do otherwise would be a repudiation of the finest principles and traditions of America."

Ford said the House vote "does not reflect the values we cherish as a nation of immigrants. It is not worthy of a people which has lived by the philosophy symbolized in the Statue of Liberty. It reflects fear and misunderstanding rather than charity and compassion."

He said Congress "may be assured that I do not intend to send the armed forces of the United States back into Vietnamese territory."

House Democratic caucus Chairman Philip Burton of California said he believed Ford was honorable and meant that. But Burton said President Lyndon B. Johnson also was honorable when he asked for the 1965 Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, which was later cited as authority for a full-scale U.S. combat role in Vietnam.

Morgan also criticized opponents for not giving retroactive approval of evacuation authority.

Industrial park sites presented

Descriptions of six possible sites for an industrial park to be developed in the city were presented to the City Council for consideration Thursday night by Economic Development Director John Hequemour.

The sites, he said, range in size from 60 to 200 acres. He did not disclose their locations.

Hequemour said he has contacted the State Department of Commerce and Industrial Development to evaluate the six sites. Taking part in the inspection, along with the state, will be the two railroads serving Sedalia, the Missouri Pacific and Missouri-Kansas-Texas, and the gas and electric utilities. There is no cost for the evaluation.

After the state submits its report, a final decision on a site will be made by the council. Then, the council is expected to present a bond issue proposal to the voters.

Originally the city was quoting $400,000 as the figure necessary to purchase land for the industrial park, but after the closed-door session Thursday night, Hequemour said the figure will probably be lower.

There will be no tax increase involved if the proposal is passed. The debt of the bonds will be repaid with city sales tax revenue.

"Employment and industrial growth are created by communities who establish that (method of financing) as one of its priorities," Mayor Jerry Jones said after the meeting. "This concept signifies our commitment to that very vital objective."

Prior to Thursday night's session, Fourth Ward Democrat David Curry explained his reasons for favoring the industrial park proposal.

"I think this will be the most important issue this year. If we can get this thing (the industrial park), it will help Sedalia more in three years than anything else in the past 20 years," Curry said.

Thursday afternoon Russell Evans, sales manager for Dean Machinery Co., addressed the city Economic Development Board concerning the possible sale of three tracts of land for the proposed industrial park.

The land, owned by Evans, is adjacent to the city airport, and consists of tracts of 115 acres, 51 acres and 40 acres.

Evans said his 115-acre site could be purchased for $200,000.

Evans stressed the importance of his property due to its proximity to the airport and the railroads, particularly the Missouri-Kansas-Texas.

According to Evans, M-K-T officials have assured him there would be no problem in constructing a rail line from the main line into his 115-acre site.

"I'm at the point where I'm going to develop whether the city does or not," Evans said.

After an executive session of the board, Hequemour said a prospective user of the industrial park was discussed, adding that information on the prospect could not be made public at this time.

There will also be a closed-door meeting of the board's not-for-profit corporation at 4 p.m. May 5 in the conference room of the Municipal Building. The corporation was formed in April with the purpose of building a $400,000, shell building at the industrial park.

Representatives of city banks and savings and loan institutions interviewed in April said they would cooperate in a joint effort to loan the city $400,000 to construct the proposed 75,000-square foot structure.

Local grade schoolers give economic views

By GWEN KINKER
Democrat-Capitol Staff Writer

Inflation is... "When gas, cloth, foods, and cars go higher so that the government can make more money and jipp people around this here nation because Ford and the capital ly to people."

No small comment on a continuing problem.

A recent survey of third and fourth graders at Sacred Heart Catholic and St. Paul's Lutheran elementary schools elicited some profound and often whimsical opinions about the nation's economy.

When asked how the recession started, replies ranged from "I don't know" to the Vietnam war.

Diligently writing in the corner of the room, one third grade boy based his opinion on excess spending. "It began when we went to war. When we had to buy guns and ammunition, etc.," he wrote. Another said: "People spend too much money on feeding cats and dogs."

But the majority of the youngsters blamed ill-fated government decisions. President "Nickson" and human greed for the country's economic problems.

"Money isn't worth as much as it used to be," scratched a blonde-headed third grade

1. I meet farmers wanted more money for the meet the meet got higher then every-body followed in wanting more money for this things products.

2. I think it was the gas shortage.

3. At war when we had to buy guns ammunition ect.

4. While the car business is down we could have people work on farms and other projects that don't need steel and other things like that.

girl. "My dad wanted to buy a dishwasher because the old one broke, but we didn't have enough money so we didn't get one."

Another wrote, "Nixon started shipping goods, oil, gasoline and money to foreign countries and now we don't have enough things to go around." One student said, "Somebody got greedy! The stores wanted more money so they could get rich."

When asked what inflation was and how to end it, many students took to definitions instead of answers. Although the majority of fourth graders were more aware of the dollar's spending power than the third grade students surveyed, many did not know how to stop inflation.

"Inflation is fuel," wrote a dark-haired third-grader. "It's something that America doesn't have much of."

"I inflated my football," said another student. And, "Inflation started when the Arians found oil and wanted it for them selves and everything else too."

But one fourth-grade girl summed up her definition and answer to inflation in two sentences: "The price keeps going up and you lose money. So you just stop buying candy and all the things you do not need."

Although many students sat with puzzled faces and asked what a recession really

Business needs prodding to improve living standards

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A major, church-commissioned study, made largely by business and economic experts, concludes that big corporations operating outside their home-lands can play a vital role in improving living standards everywhere, but need the moral prodding of churches to reinforce that objective.

The churches "can have an important impact" in focusing transnational business operations on social betterment, says the report by a special panel made up mostly of bankers, corporate executives, government officials, labor specialists and lawyers.

They say that the "churches cannot in good conscience withdraw" from such efforts, in view of the Biblical perspective.

Churches have been applying their influence increasingly lately in the business area, with both Protestant and Roman Catholic bodies filing shareholder petitions and speaking out at shareholder meetings. The report, mainly from business leaders, indicates they find the church nudging valuable.

It serves as a "voice of conscience," even in cases where church stock holdings are relatively small, says panel chairman William F. Triebler, retired first vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and presently consultant to it.

Henry Dumcombe Jr., vice president and chief economist of General Motors, a panel member, says the churches "have alerted us to issues that had not surfaced before" and brought "substantial progress" on them.

"The impact of the churches on the multinational business community has been very constructive," he told a news conference.

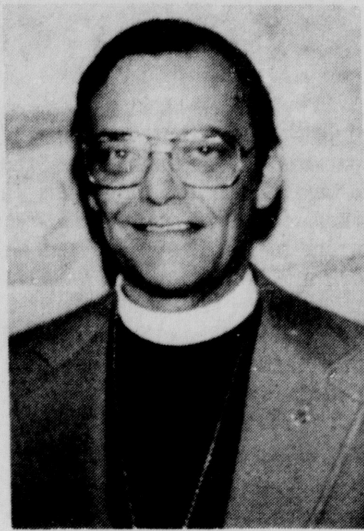

"The whole question of codes of conduct has become a very important factor of consideration, and the initiatives taken by the churches have made these issues important in the business community. The power of moral suasion is very potent."

The study, on the role of transnational business operations on economic development in host countries, is the first broad-scale inquiry in the field under church auspices. Only two clergy were on the 21-member panel of experts commissioned by the United Church of Christ.

The report says transnational corporations "have the potential to create jobs, transfer knowledge and skills, improve working conditions and generally increase the standard of living worldwide," that some of them are accomplishing these ends, while others are not, due to various factors.

"It is not enough that an institution, a business concern or a system serve those individuals who have a proprietary interest in it," the report says, but "must serve society and meet its changing needs" or perish.

Episcopal mission set here

A special preaching and teaching mission will be held Sunday through Tuesday at Calvary Episcopal Church, Broadway and Ohio. The Rev. Robert H. Hawn, Denver, will be the missionary.

A native of Des Moines, Mr. Hawn took a B.S. degree from the University of Utah and a master's degree from the Church Divinity School of the Pacific, Berkeley, Calif.

He retired from the Army in 1971 after 26 years service, both as an infantry and armor officer and later as a chaplain. He saw action in World War II, Korea and Vietnam.

As an Episcopal priest, he has been the rector of churches in Hawaii and Texas. Since 1973 he has been executive secretary of the Episcopal Charismatic Fellowship, with headquarters in Denver.

Mr. Hawn will preach at the 10 a.m. Sunday service at Calvary Church, and also at services at 7:30 p.m. that night, Monday and Tuesday. Women's sessions will be held at 10 a.m. Monday and Tuesday.

The public is invited to all services.

Bond appoints K.C. beautician to state board

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A Kansas City beauty salon operator, Wanda E. Bolton, was appointed to the State Board of Cosmetology Thursday by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

The governor also appointed Lyle J. Bouck Jr. of St. Louis County to the state Board of Chiropractic Examiners, succeeding Dr. James A. Mertz whose term expired.

Ms. Bolton, who also is an instructor at the Kansas City Technical Education Center, was named to fill the post left vacant when the Senate refused to confirm Leila Cohoon of Independence last December because it was felt she opposed vocational cosmetology courses.

Both of Bond's new appointments are also subject to Senate confirmation.

Rezoning request approved

The Sedalia Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday night approved a request to rezone from R-1 (residential) to C-O (non-retail), five lots comprising a half block of Marvin Ave. facing 16th.

The commission's recommendation to rezone the tract of land now must go to the City Council for final approval.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lawson, 721 East 16th, requested the zoning change in order to locate a beauty shop in their home.

According to Lawson, a 24-foot addition will be made to the rear of their residence and an existing shed will be replaced by a parking lot to accommodate four to five cars.

Although the majority of commission members approved the rezoning request, commission member Laurence Keele voiced opposition, saying a five-car parking lot was not large enough for such a shop.

"You wouldn't believe how many problems parking has caused within the last six years," Keele said. (Keele has been a commission member for more than six years.)

Lawson, however, added he could not afford to buy adjacent lots or build a new building for the shop. But efforts to increase parking space would be made should parking present a problem.

According to commission chairman Ray Hendricks, city ordinances require non-retail zoned lots for accountant, lawyer and physician offices. Grocery and retail stores cannot be placed in these areas, Hendricks said.

But Hendricks commented, "I hope we can eliminate 'hopscotch' zoning when we begin the comprehensive city ordinance study."

Members of the Planning and Zoning Commission and several city officials will begin a 10-chapter, home-study course in current planning and zoning regulations offered by the University of Missouri Extension Division May 21 and 28. The course is an effort to prepare for a future update of the city's comprehensive ordinance plan.

"We're trying to stop spot-zoning," Hendricks said.

Mississippi flooding closes roads

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP) — Several riverfront streets in Davenport, Iowa have been closed as the Mississippi River reached flood stage at 15 feet in the Quad Cities area, officials said.

At noon, Thursday, the river overflowed its banks at the Rock Island Arsenal and Lock and Dam 15.

If there is no more significant rainfall, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and local authorities said the river is expected to crest on May 9 at about 19 feet, third highest level of this century.

The Corps has provided about 500,000 sandbags and polyethylene sheeting as well as pumps and other equipment for the Quad Cities area.

There have been few evacuations so far. Davenport is expected to bear the brunt of the flooding, in part because of storm sewer backups, officials said.

High banks at Moline and a system of dykes at East Moline are expected to prevent all but minor flooding there, and a floodwall system at Rock Island is supposed to keep it relatively dry, officials said.

The entire Rock Island district, roughly from Dubuque to Keokuk, is expected to undergo some flooding, officials said.

Importance of volunteers noted

The importance and necessity of volunteer efforts to help alleviate the severe shortage of family physicians in rural areas across America was emphasized Friday morning by Dr. Daryl Hobbs in an address to some 40 volunteer workers participating in Project WESCENMO.

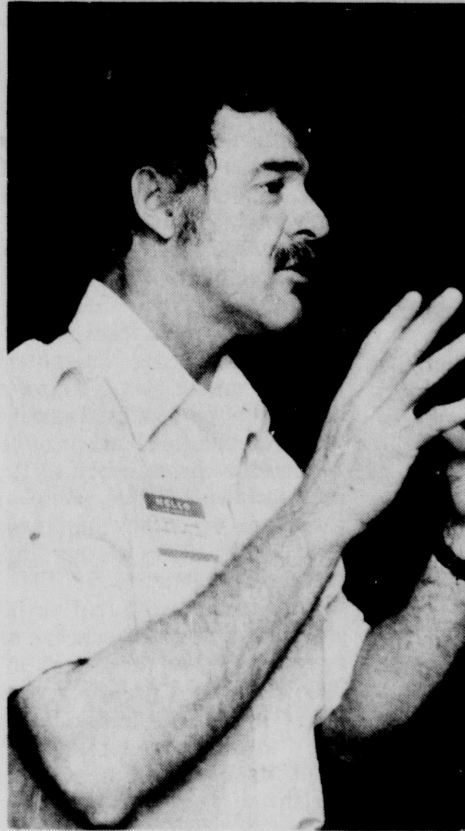

Project WESCENMO is a Sedalia-based program in its third year of providing mobile medical assistance for rural children in a 13-county West Central Missouri area. It is the only program of its kind in the United States.

Hobbs, a professor of rural sociology at the University of Missouri-Columbia, and an adviser for Project WESCENMO, outlined four areas of service which he said characterized the project.

"For one thing, you are bringing health services out where the people are," he said. "Usually, the responsibility for securing health services rests on the consumer. Here, the treatment can come to him."

This is particularly important in rural areas, he noted, where a larger proportion of people would probably not be paid for time lost in taking their children to a pediatrician in another city.

"Professional people and many others in larger cities can more easily arrange to take time off such cases," he noted. "In rural areas, where many people work on a per-hour basis, they wouldn't get paid for time off."

Another important aspect of the program, Hobbs said, is its emphasis on preventive medicine. "Obviously, if you can prevent illnesses, you won't have to take as many extraordinary measures to save lives later on," he said. "Prevention is the key."

Many of these concepts, Hobbs said, "employ more or less obvious common sense." However, he added, "there have been a lot of instances in recent years in this country where common sense has not been applied."

One factor limiting the effectiveness of programs involving volunteer workers, such as WESCENMO, Hobbs said, "is that too many people in this country have become far too dependent on professionals to solve all their problems."

It was noted earlier that volunteers such as those attending the meeting Friday performed nearly one-fourth of all medical services offered by Project WESCENMO. Hobbs added that, in the 85 Missouri counties with population of 25,000 or less, 52 per cent of the physicians are 55 years of age or older.

"The shortage isn't caused by doctors packing up and moving away from small towns," he said. "It's just that when they retire or die, there is no one to replace them."

"We have got to be able to utilize all available resources to compensate for the shortage," he continued. "And I think it's exciting that all of you here are involved in your communities, helping the professional staff and helping all the children in your town receive medical treatment. This volunteer spirit has to be the wave of the future if the medical situation in rural areas of this country is to be improved. It won't happen overnight, but you can help make a beginning."

Prior to Hobbs' remarks, it was noted the project professional and volunteer staffs have treated 5,032 children since March, 1973, and have supervised more than 10,000 patient visits.

FDR was correct, claims Harriman

KANSAS CITY (AP) — When Averell Harriman is asked his assessment of Vietnam, the former New York governor and ambassador-at-large says his mind drifts back by three decades to President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"Roosevelt took the position that the French should never have been permitted back in Vietnam after World War II," said Harriman, who was a special assistant to the President. "I agree. If only we had followed his advice, we would have avoided all this ghastly agony."

Harriman, former Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford and retired Army Chief of Staff Matthew B. Ridgeway are among special guests scheduled to participate in a conference tonight on Korea at the Truman Library in neighboring Independence, Mo.

At an opening reception here Thursday night, Harriman, 83, submitted it is time for the country to pull together.

"Vietnam has been a divisive factor, but now it is time to pull together and deal with problems at home and abroad as a united nation. Most people were through with the war two years ago. The objections now to trying to help the Vietnamese who were loyal to us, to give them new homes, is an indication people want to be through with the war."

"I don't agree with that. I think we have an obligation to help these people re-establish themselves. The great question now is what North Vietnam will do now that they have achieved what they have been fighting for the last 20 years. If they will not interfere with other people, there will be a more stable situation in Southeast Asia. But it remains to be seen what they will do."

Ridgeway, who as commanding general of the 8th Army in Korea led a counterattack against Chinese and North Korean forces 22 years ago, was reluctant to talk about the fall of South Vietnam.

"I think it's too early for anyone except those in very high government positions to give an assessment," he said. "I'm not competent to discuss it."

Sedalia man to have trial on theft charges

Steven Meives, 22, 204 South Century, was bound over for trial in Pettis County Circuit Court Thursday afternoon by Magistrate Judge Hazel Palmer on charges of second degree burglary and stealing.

Meives is charged in connection with the April 14 burglary and theft of three firearms from Howard Construction Co., Inc., 1509 North Ohio.

The weapons, two shotguns and a rifle, were owned by Olen Howard and stored at Howard's place of business.

Meives was arrested by Pettis County sheriff's officers April 17. He remains in the county jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

In other action Friday, the release of Robert Appleman, 50, 1003 East Sixth, to Oklahoma authorities was approved by Judge Palmer.

Appleman was arrested Feb. 11 by Pettis County officers on warrants issued by Ottawa County, Okla., authorities charging him with writing bogus checks.

Appleman was held in the Pettis County on a fugitive felony warrant, pending extradition papers from Oklahoma. He remains in the county jail, pending the arrival of Oklahoma authorities to take him back there.

was, their expressions changed at the mention of "unemployment." Those students who knew what the word meant centered their suggestions on building construction efforts, new businesses and a concerned President to solve the nation's unemployment problem.

"I think I'd write a letter to President Ford and the owners of stores," said one boy. "I would build a factory that wouldn't cost any money and put thousands of people to work," suggested another.

One third-grade boy, however, found a somewhat different answer: "Give everybody a job in the government," he said. "They probably would be better off."

Confused about the entire economic mess, one fourth-grader just stared out the window. His answer to all these questions was short and simple, "I don't know, I don't know," he said. "It's just to hard."

Workshop aim is assistance for the deaf

Some 140 parents and educators involved in instructing deaf or hearing-impaired persons attended the opening session Friday morning of the "visit with David Anthony" workshop held now through Saturday at the Ramada Inn.

Anthony, a college instructor at the University of Northern Colorado, is the creator of the "S.E.E. system," a system of sign language believed to be superior to conventional sign language patterns for the deaf.

His appearance is being sponsored by the Virginia Flower Child Development and Rehabilitation Center, the center's Parents' Association for Deaf Children, the University of Missouri at Kansas City department of speech sciences and Sedalia School District 200.

Other seminar participants include Dr. Leonard Hall, assistant commissioner for the division of special education of the state Department of Elementary and Secondary Education; Dr. Conrad LaRiviere, assistant professor, department of speech, University of Missouri, Kansas City; and Dr. James Reeds, associate professor of linguistics and speech science at the University of Missouri-Kansas City.

Anthony, LaRiviere and Reeds all addressed the seminar audience Friday morning. Anthony also was to speak at 1:30 p.m. and 2:45 p.m. Friday, with Dr. Hall scheduled to speak at a banquet to be held at 6:30 p.m. Friday at the Inn.

On Saturday, Anthony will speak at 10:15 a.m., 1 p.m. and 2:15 p.m. Question and answer sessions will follow each of Anthony's addresses.

Seven persons are now free on bonds

(Democrat-Capital Service)

LEXINGTON — Seven persons have been released from the Lafayette County jail here after posting $2,000 to $4,000 bond each following their arrests Wednesday night in drug raids in this area.

A total of 12 persons, including one juvenile, were arrested on charges of selling controlled substances and were arraigned in Magistrate Court here Thursday morning.

The arrests were the result of a five-month investigation, with federal agents making purchases from those arrested, Sheriff Gene Darnell said.

Those persons arraigned were: Mark F. Butcher, 23, Odessa, charged with the sale of marijuana; John E. Camp, 21, Blackburn, charged with two counts of selling controlled substances; Timothy Allen Rechterman, 20, Higginsville, charged with the sale of MDA; William A. Coskey, 22; Darrell Ray Duffett, 19; Bryan Keith Heabrin, 18; Troy Dean Newman, 19; Kevin Arthur Kraft, 19; Daniel Black Smith Jr., 30; all of Lexington, charged with marijuana sales; Wayne Neal Millentree, 22, charged with the sale of LSD; Steven John Newman, 18, charged with the sale of amphetamines; and one juvenile, all of Lexington.

The city would repay the interest, but not the principal of the loan. This proposal would first have to be approved by the voters, like the proposal to approve a general obligation bond issue to purchase the industrial park itself.

At the May 5 meeting, Hequembourg said Friday, it is hoped all local financial leaders will be able to specify how much they would be able to contribute to this joint-loan venture.

Ford to meet with Egypt's Sadat in June

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will meet with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in June, a White House spokesman announced today. Informed sources said the President was lining up a separate meeting with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

The White House spokesman said discussion was under way about a meeting with Rabin. But he said no details have been worked out.

The President will meet with Sadat June 1-2 in Salzburg, Austria, "for discussion of matters of mutual interest and ways to further strengthen relations between Egypt and the United States," the spokesman said.

The meeting was announced simultaneously by the Egyptian government in Cairo.

While visiting Europe, the spokesman said, Ford will expand his NATO summit meeting in Brussels to include visits to Spain and Italy.

Mrs. Ford will accompany the President on the trip, which will start May 29-30 in Brussels for the NATO summit. A visit to Madrid will take place May 31 and June 1, immediately following the Brussels session.

Ford will go to Rome June 3 for discussions with Italian leaders.

A visit to Vatican City for an audience with Pope Paul VI will be included in the Italian visit.

The meetings with Sadat and Rabin are seen as part of a U.S. attempt to recapture the diplomatic initiative toward a Middle East settlement that was lost in March with the collapse of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's step-by-step approach.

Minor injuries for three in collision

(Democrat-Capital Service)

HOUSTONIA — Three persons were treated for apparently minor injuries and released from Bothwell Hospital in Sedalia Thursday following a two-car collision on Route 00, about 2.5 miles north of here, at 11:20 p.m.

Injured were Kenneth Schilke, 18, Sedalia, driver of a northbound auto, and two passengers in the car, Darrell Maggard, 20, and Jackie Clark, 17, also of Sedalia. Schilke and Maggard had facial lacerations and bruises and Clark suffered contusions and abrasions.

According to the Highway Patrol, the accident occurred when Schilke's auto slid into the rear of a slower-moving northbound auto driven by James Reno, 29, Sweet Springs.

Secret stripper cools co-worker

Dear Ann Landers: I work in a hospital business office. Working with me is a girl I'll call Betsy.

Betsy supports her handicapped mother and I admire her for that. But I recently found out she has another job. She's a stripper at a downtown theater.

"Since I learned about Betsy's other 'career' I've been quite distant and she has noticed it. So have others. She's popular in this office and I've been taking some heat since I've cooled toward her. Should I tell them about Betsy's other 'career'? I'd hate for people to think I'm a snob. — Quiet (So Far)

Dear Q.S.F.: Unless Betsy performs with a sack over her head someone is sure to learn of her other "career." Keep quiet. As for your coolness, that's your business. But I'll bet several others in that office wouldn't treat her differently if they knew.

Dear Ann Landers: Hey, you with all the good advice. I need help. I've been trying to "forget the bum" for two years. But whenever I run into him, that old pain starts gnawing at me again.

Forgetting is easier said than done. What do you suggest? — Remembering In Tucson

Dear R: You're remembering the wrong things, honey. Instead of reliving the tender moments and the toothpaste-flavored kisses, think of the dentist bill after he rearranged your bridge work — the nights you walked the floor wondering where he was, and with whom. Recall exactly what it was that made you decide to "throw the bum out." Once you get your head REALLY straightened out, that old pain will be gone.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I invited some out-of-town friends to visit us for the weekend. We have no extra bedroom and told them we'd make reservations at a motel.

I couldn't think of the name of the motel so I called Directory Assistance and told the operator my problem. She said (in a very stuck-up voice), "I'm sorry but it is impossible for me to give you the number if you don't have the name of the place."

I told her I'd recognize the name if I heard it, and asked her to please read off the list of motels. Her reply was, "Why don't you look in the telephone book?"

I didn't need HER to tell me THAT. I thought the telephone company was supposed to provide service.

We pay our phone bills every month and it wouldn't kill them to help a customer in trouble by putting themselves out a little. — T'D Off In Birmingham

Dear T'D: Do you have any idea how many motels there are in Birmingham? Information operators should not be expected to read off lists. Your request was unreasonable.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you had a letter in your column from a secretary who said she wouldn't dream of calling her boss (chairman of the board of a major oil company) by his first name. I hope that square dame saw the results of a national survey reported by a wire service recently.

It revealed that 95 per cent of the 500 bosses questioned said they preferred to be called by their first names.

Age differences between employers and employees were not a major factor. The 5 per cent who objected to first names were physicians and lawyers.

How do you like them apples? — Gotcha

Dear G.: The apples are fine — it's the survey I question. I don't know who those 500 bosses were, but I did a little survey of my own and my findings were as follows: 80 per cent of the bosses were quite adamant. They preferred to be called "Mr." or "Dr." "Mrs." or "Miss." (P.S. Not one said "Ms.")

S.S. report given to Kiwanis

Kiwanians heard a report on problems confronting the Social Security system at their meeting Thursday noon at the Bothwell Hotel.

Owen Smith, acting Social Security Administration district manager in Sedalia, said Social Security payments will exceed income by $4 billion next year if an expected 8 per cent increase in benefits goes into effect this July.

Smith said there is a large reserve capable of meeting this imbalance for the shorthaul, but that in the long run something will have to be done. "At this point there is a reserve; that reserve is fast diminishing," he added.

While the question of how Social Security will be funded in the future "is not a panic thing," Smith said, it is "very serious." He said the question comes down to: "What do we, the public, want from Social Security and what are we willing to pay for it?"

Social Security was never meant to be the sole source of retired income, Smith pointed out, but he estimated that for between 30 and 40 per cent of the recipients, this is the case. Benefits have steadily risen over the years, he said, recently being tied to automatic cost-of-living formulas.

Smith said, "For too long we've been guilty of saying, 'Here's the benefits, but don't ask what it costs.'"

If Congress decides to hold the July benefits increase to 5 per cent, instead of 8, this will be some help, but will not solve the long range problem, Smith said. He said this has been created by inflation and an imbalance between wage-earners and Social Security recipients brought about by population changes.

President Doug Kneibert reminded members that club elections will be held next Thursday. A minute of silent prayer was also observed for Kiwanian Vernell McRoy, who died Tuesday.

Postmaster Maurice Hogan was a guest of Dr. D. R. Edwards.

River trip is planned today from St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Five young persons plan to launch a 1,065-mile trip down the Mississippi River today to re-enact a Louisiana Fur Co. journey from St. Louis to New Orleans.

The re-enactment is an American Revolution Bicentennial project of the youths, all from Illinois.

The four men will play the roles of French fur traders and the lone woman, Judy Kleckler, will portray a Frenchwoman going to visit relatives in New Orleans.

The fur company which the group will represent was headed by Pierre LaCade, founder of St. Louis, in 1775. The French bateau that will carry the group down the river has been named "L'Amie Bienveillante," meaning "The Bountiful Friend."

Other celebrations are planned as the boat reaches communities including Prairie du Rocher, Ill.; Cairo, Ill.; Hickman, Ky.; Memphis; Rose-dale, Miss.; and New Orleans.

Participants in the journey will be Miss Kleckler, Jerry Schneider, Dennis Kerasotes, Dean Campbell and Terry Davis. Their hometowns were not available.

THE WAR GOES ON!

Even though South East Asia has come to a close, there is still a major war going on in this world. It is the war of Satan for the Souls of mankind. He and his army are out to claim every soul that they can. The Old Serpent as he is called, seeks to defeat God by turning every man, woman, boy and girl on earth against God.

Percentages show that he seems to be winning. It has been said that only 10 per cent of the worlds population are Born Again Christians. That means that 90 per cent of the world is at War with GOD. You may say: I thought you said that Satan was at war with God? He is, but those who have not received Christ as their Saviour are on Satan's side. Jesus said in Matthew 12:30: "HE THAT IS NOT WITH ME IS AGAINST ME."

Perhaps today you are at war with God and Don't realize it. If you have never been Born Again, if you are not confident that you are on your way to heaven if you should die; my friend you are at WAR with GOD. There is only one way to stop the war and gain a lasting ETERNAL PEACE. That is to follow these four easy steps.

REALIZE...

1. ALL MEN ARE SINNERS — "As it is written, There is none righteous, no not one; There is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God." — Romans 3:10,11

2. THERE IS A PENALTY FOR SIN — "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned" Romans 5:12

3. GOD HAS PROVIDED A WAY OF SALVATION — "But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." — Romans 5:8

4. SALVATION COMES BY ASKING GOD FOR IT — "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. . . . For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." — Romans 10:9, 13.

Wallace poor pick for honor at school

Rowan

For 29 years the Christian Brothers who run the school have used a father-son banquet as the occasion for honoring someone who has made an "outstanding contribution to society, particularly in education, and, one who exemplifies those standards of personal achievement we seek to instill in our cadets."

In the view of Brother Charles E. Gresh, president of St. John's, the person most fitting that description this year is none other than George Corley Wallace, governor of Alabama. So Wallace was invited to speak at the banquet and receive the highest honor this school can bestow on an individual.

The Very Rev. Matthew J. O'Rourke, superior general of the Josephites, another community of Catholic priests and brothers, wrote Brother Gresh expressing "dismay" over the latter's "extraordinary obtuseness and gross insensitivity to the pain and embarrassment you have caused so many fellow Catholics."

Christian Brothers in other cities threatened to picket the banquet if Wallace remains the honoree.

I mention this not because readers in New York or Nashville are likely to give a hoot about St. John's or its banquet, but because it says so much about American morality at a time when most of us purport to be trying to lift the country about the Watergate stench.

People remember that it was George Wallace who tried physically to block admission of a black student to the University of Alabama 12 years ago. "Segregation now! Segregation tomorrow! Segregation forever!" he shouted.

The Josephites said to Brother Gresh: "It is totally incomprehensible how you can reconcile the choice of Gov. Wallace, a symbol of racism throughout the country, with the Christian ideals for which St. John's stands."

Millions of other Americans will be equally perplexed, given the fact that Wallace has made no confession of wrongdoing at Tuscaloosa, he has offered no expression of contrition, he has made no act of penance. Wallace has never renounced his "Segregation forever!" declaration.

This incident simply points up anew the reality that Americans are often made gullible by their political, economic or personal prejudices and frustrations. They see proof of human redemption where there is none.

The American public rejected Richard Nixon in 1960 as "Tricky Dick," a candidate from whom no sane person would buy a used car. California voters figured they knew him better, so in 1962 they rejected him in such a way that Nixon almost had a nervous breakdown in front of the press.

But Nixon staged a clever "human redemption" campaign. And enough voters fell for the Madison Avenue malarkey about a "new Nixon" that they gave him the presidency. They brought upon themselves the worst scandals ever to envelop national leadership in this country.

I don't know how Brother Charles responded to the "new Nixon" snowjob, but he clearly was taken in by "the new Wallace" propaganda.

Richard Nixon couldn't change because his personality, his whole being, had been stamped beyond repair. The flaws were ineradicable.

George Wallace is unlikely to change. Racism and demagoguery have been so much a part of his every utterance, his gut existence, that he'll always have his heart and soul blocking some schoolhouse door.

Yet, he has gained "respectability" within a large, frustrated segment of our population, and this causes worry among Democrats and Republicans who see him merely as a "spoiler."

We have more reasons than politics for worrying when an institution like St. John's even entertains the notion that Wallace suddenly exemplifies standards that "we seek to instill in our cadets."

Drop in population to bring benefits

Projections about where Americans are headed, in terms of numbers, are being revised in the light of recent government statistics.

From January through August of last year, the birth rate continued the steady decline that began about 1970. Then in September, even as the economy began its nosedive, the birth curve suddenly began rising and continued to rise in October, November and December.

The result, according to the National Center for Health Statistics, was that for the year as a whole, the birth rate was up 1 per cent over 1973.

The actual increase was small, however — 25,000 more babies born in 1974 than in 1973 — and population watchers point out that the rise was due to an increase in the number of women of childbearing age rather than to an increase in the average number of children per family.

Last year, despite the fourth-quarter upsurge in births, the U.S. population of some 213 million grew at a rate of only seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

On the other hand, because the number of women of childbearing age is expected to increase by 12 per cent between now and 1980, some experts fear a mini-baby boom as the babies of the 1950s enter their prime childbearing years.

All projections aside, our presently slowed growth has already provided a number of benefits to the health and welfare of all Americans, say the advocates of zero population growth.

Because of the decline in the secondary school population, school boards are able to divert millions from classroom brick and mortar into better education in the form of lower teacher-pupil ratios and help for youngsters who need special attention.

Many hospitals have been able to reduce their obstetric units and give more health care to people of all ages. Demographers and economists alike foresee such happy eventualities as reduced air and water pollution, less pressure on our already strained resources, fewer people in poverty, fewer children but more wanted children.

By 1980, says Harvard professor James Q. Wilson, we can look for "a general and persistent reduction" in crime because the crime-prone youthful component of our population will be proportionately smaller. (NEA)

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Speaking candidly behind closed doors, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger recently tried to assess the news shocks which have jolted the nation.

He cited the Watergate horror, the economic nosedive, the breakdown of Arab-Israeli negotiations and, finally, the collapse of anti-Communist forces in Cambodia and Vietnam.

"We are close," pronounced Kissinger, "to a national nervous breakdown."

We disagree.

You see, we've been receiving thousands of letters each week from the people who make up this country. They have been shaken by the setbacks, it's true. Many are disillusioned and discouraged. For them, the high and pure and good in America has become blurred.

But it is unmistakably clear from their letters that the United States has suffered a Dunkirk, not a Waterloo. The spirit of America, as expressed in more than 750,000 letters, is depressed but not deflated.

The Americans who have been writing to us don't want their leaders to become obsessed with futile regrets, excessive remorse or divisive recriminations. The prevailing view, according to our massive mail, is that there has been enough mourning and lamenting over past wrongs.

The majority of our letter writers, although they don't want the lessons of the past to be forgotten, believe that our focus should be forward, not backward. "Let's go America," urges Richard G. Brine, a Moriches, N.Y., postal worker, in a typical letter.

The mail we have amassed, we believe, is the best available measure of the mood of America. It began flooding in after we suggested that our Bicentennial slogan should come from the people, not the government. We invited our readers to search for the right words to express their feelings about America.

We have been absolutely deluged with letters containing slogans, songs, poems, reminiscences — an outpouring of sentiment from the hearts of the people. The overwhelming majority of the responses have been thoughtful and sincere, not chauvinistic or cynical.

Our offices became so swamped with

Merry-go-round

America still OK despite setbacks slogans that we had to arrange a separate mailing address. Please send your slogans to SLOGANS USA, Box 1976, Washington, D.C. And send your songs to The American Song Festival, 5900 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90036.

As evidence of how Americans feel deep down about their country, we have picked out a few letters at random from the 750,000 accumulation.

"When this country was cut from the wilderness," writes Floyd A. Smith, a retired Rockingham, N.C., railroad worker, "all men were equal because of their need for each other... Over the years, we have become unequal — politically, economically and socially... So I must ask my Country to restore Equality."

Yet despite the inequities, his faith in the country remains strong. "I am proud to be an American," he declares. He is confined to a wheelchair, having lost an arm and two legs in a railroad accident. It must have been with feeling, therefore, that he offered this slogan: "America built with hands, calloused and torn; but Freedom was born."

The need to look ahead was stressed by 83-year-old Wayne Goble of Apple Valley, Calif. "Even at this age," he told us, "I'm always looking forward." His suggested slogan: "Forward America, Horizons Unlimited!"

From a rugged, Blairstown, N.J., truck driver came a poem. Alpan Walker was depressed by the world news. But as he wheeled his great truck through Florida, he began to think about the meaning of America.

He put his thoughts into poetry, which included these lines: "America is truly beautiful, From sea to forest wood. She exemplifies what man can do, Through love and brotherhood."

No one expressed the mood of the country more succinctly than did 13-year-old Robin Gersten of the Bronx. "We have gotten through the depression and we're just about through Watergate," she wrote. "Now it's with the CIA. What'll they think of next? But whatever it is, the U.S. will get through it, because we are the best."

The Paul Chilton family of Louisville, Ky., believes that the family unit is the backbone of the country, that no nation can rise above its homes. Therefore, they joined together as a family to compose some slogans.

"Don't just stand back and criticize," wrote the father. "Come forward and lend a helping hand. You are America; our future depends on you."

"Smile America, don't look so sad; There's more good about your country, than there is bad," wrote 15-year-old Anthony Chilton.

And 13-year-old Rickey Chilton offered this: "You say America just isn't what she used to be; What have you done to keep her beautiful and keep her free?"

Carl W. Schumeyer, a retired civil engineer from Frankfort, Ind., made this appeal: "Be a red-white-and-blue collar worker. Make America ever greater."

And 11-year-old Kim Reid of Indianapolis, who says it makes her feel good when she sees the flag, suggested this slogan: "1776-1976-2176. Like our forefathers, Pioneers of tomorrow."

Reader likes Lang history

Last week my copy of Hazel Lang's "Life in Pettis County 1815-1973" arrived by mail. Since then I have spent many happy hours reading about people, events and things I had long since forgotten or never before knew.

No doubt there are those who are disappointed at not being included in this very unusual history. I understand the opportunity was extended through your newspaper, the radio and TV for all to tell their family stories and memories (without charge) through which life in Sedalia, Pettis County and history was revealed. From the size of the book, it is obvious that many, many people responded. It was, of course, an impossibility for Hazel to contact everyone for information.

May I say a very large "thank you" to your newspaper and all other persons who helped Hazel to compile this unique story of "Life in Pettis County." Lawrence, Kan. Mrs. Todd Homan

Lots of people talk about preserving monuments of our past, but hardly anyone does anything about it.

Two Sedalia lawyers are the exception. Jim Rice and Ken Romines recently bought the old General Tire store building at 701 South Ohio and have transformed it into a first-class example of what careful restoration can accomplish.

Rice estimates the brick building to be 100 years old, which sounds about right. He and his partner have sunk a bundle into restoring and renovating it as law offices, without destroying its 19th Century character.

It is also noteworthy because the upstairs (which will be used by a dentist) includes one of Sedalia's few surviving oriel windows (see P.S. of 11-8-74).

Sedalia's Environmental Quality Commission is charged with awarding prizes for private contributions to the improvement of the quality of the city's environment. Among these is one for "the most successful renovation or restoration of an old building."

As a committee of one, I would like to nominate the above-mentioned example.

West didn't really need an eight-card club suit for his non-vulnerable preempt and diamonds don't always break 4-0, but he had a free insurance policy at his disposal. All he had to do at trick two was to play dummy's nine of clubs instead of the king. East could ruff or do anything that his fancy told him, but South would have had no worries. 18-year career ends

'Skins retire Sonny Jurgensen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sonny Jurgensen, with the waistline of a veteran beer drinker (actually he leans more toward scotch), was asked once how he could quarterback with a protruding stomach.

"I throw with my arm, not my belly," he replied.

And throw he did during the 18 years he played in the National Football League — 11 with the Washington Redskins and seven with the Philadelphia Eagles.

The 40-year-old Jurgensen was retired by the Redskins Thursday even though he made it plain he did not like the idea.

"I would have preferred to make the decision myself," Jurgensen said at a news conference. "So few people get out of the game at the right time. Everybody thinks they can do it forever. But you would like to make the decision to quit yourself.

"It's the dignity of going out," he said. "It's not a matter of being replaced by Billy Kilmer.... He did that four years ago.

"It's kind of disappointing to retire this way," said Jurgensen, who holds numerous NFL passing records and led the National Conference last season although he was a part-timer. "I feel that I could still make a contribution. I believe I can still help someone win."

Earlier, at another news conference, Coach George Allen made Jurgensen's retirement official by saying he made the decision for the good of the team and its future.

"He deserves every recognition he's going to get," Allen said. "He'll go to the Hall of Fame. I hope his next years will be as productive and happy as his last 18 have been."

Allen said Jurgensen's No. 9 jersey will be retired as was the No. 33 of one of his famed predecessors, Sammy Baugh.

"Sonny has been injured and has undergone operations in three of the past four years," Allen said. "We've got a young quarterback named Joe Theismann and there are a lot of other factors."

At his own conference later in the day, Jurgensen announced he would join a management consulting firm fulltime and was considering an offer to become a color analyst for CBS Sports on NFL games this fall.

Royals win long struggle against California, 11-10

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The long struggle started at 7:33 p.m.

Four hours and 22 minutes, 33 hits, 21 runs, seven errors, 10 stolen bases, nine pitchers, three ejections and 13 innings later, the Kansas City Royals had beaten the California Angels 11-10 Thursday night.

Cookie Rojas doubled home the tying run and scored on Buck Martinez' single for the difference in this wild baseball shootout but it was the "Goldust Twins" who had a lot to do with keeping the Royals in the battle.

That would be Amos Otis and Fred Patek. Otis stole four bases and Patek two. Patek got three hits and Otis two, and each scored twice.

"We try to let the Angels know we've got rabbits on this club, too," said Otis, whose body was loaded with strawberries, a baseball player's terminology for bruises and spots of broken skin covered with bandages.

Otis, who leads the American League in stolen bases with 14, has swiped 11 against the Angels. He has been thrown out only twice.

"I had some good jumps," said Otis, who admits he's going to steal as many as possible this season. "I was on base six times. If the other club lets me run, I'll run.

"I know when to run and when to stay put. If I go, the whole team will move, and if they keep little Fred batting ahead of me, we'll both go."

Patek has pilfered 10 bases.

The first inning saw the two teams each score four runs and Angels Manager Dick Williams, catcher Ellie

Sports

Rodriguez and starting pitcher Ed Figueroa ejected for protesting plate umpire Rich Garcia's ruling that Hal McRae was safe at home.

Joe Lahoud's home run, his second of the season, with Dave Chalk on base highlighted the Angels' first inning outburst against Nelson Briles.

Tony Solaita slammed his first homer with Jim Wohlford scoring ahead of him in the Royals' seventh, deadlocking the game at 9-9.

That's the way it remained until Tommy Harper singled for the Angels with one out in the 13th, stole second and rode home on Chalk's single.

The victory went to Doug Bird, 2-1, the Royals' fourth pitcher. Orlando Pena, 0-2, the Angels' fifth, was the loser. The loss knocked the Angels out of a tie with idle Oakland for the lead in the AL's West Division.

Ellis, Hickman run away with CMC track Crown

(Democrat-Capital Service)

COLUMBIA — To no one's surprise, Columbia Hickman repeated as the Central Missouri Conference outdoor track champion here Thursday.

But the ease with which the Kewpies did it was in some respects impressive.

For instance, junior Gerry Ellis, set records in the shot put and discus, and finished just one-tenth of a second off the record in winning the 100-yard dash.

Ellis' performance, which netted him 18 personal points, helped the defending champion

Kewpies to 90 points and first place.

Jefferson City finished second with 75, while Sedalia Smith-Cotton was nine back in third place. Hannibal brought up the rear with 19 points.

All told, six records fell, including the triple jump, which was broken by Smith-Cotton's Dwight Butler. Butler went 42-7 1/2 to win the event. That bettered the 1973 standard set by Rick Carter of Sedalia at 42-3 1/4.

Ellis' biggest moment of the day came in the discus. His throw of 173-7 1/2 bettered by nearly 18 feet the previous record set in 1960 by Ed Lane, Columbia, of 155-11 1/4.

Ellis' throw in the shot put was also a record at 58-3 1/2. That broke the previous mark set in 1961 by George Comfort, Columbia, of 54-11 1/4.

Ellis nearly equalled the 100-yard dash mark of .09.9 with his dash of 10.0.

"Putting it lightly," said one observer at the meet, "he had one hell of a day."

Jefferson City's two-mile relay team blistered the track in a time of 8:02.5 to edge Smith-Cotton by two and one-half seconds and win the event. That topped the previous mark set in 1969 by Columbia Hickman at 8:14.4.

The other records set in the meet were established by John Sanders, Hickman, in the 120-yard high hurdles; and by Dave Cooper, Jefferson City, in the 880-yard run.

Sanders was caught at 14.3, cutting three-tenths of a second off the previous mark shared by George Simpson, Columbia, and Jefferson City's Harry Lehwald.

Cooper broke Brian Walsh's (Hannibal) 880 record with a time of 1:58.6. Walsh's set the standard in 1971 at 2:01.

Hickman breezed into the championship with eight first-place finishes. They capped off the competition finishing one-two in the 120 highs, and one-three in the 220.

Capital Speedway season will open Saturday night

(Democrat-Capital Service)

JEFFERSON CITY — The 1975 auto racing season will open Saturday night at Capital Speedway in Holts Summit, Mo. The weekly program of super-sprint, late model and hobby stock car races starts at 8 p.m., with the first heat of super-sprinters on the three-eighths mile dirt oval.

Defending super-sprint track champion Bill Utz, Sedalia, will be guiding his familiar Pat O'Connor-Dean Hathman number 56 around the track in quest of a second straight Capital Speedway title.

Jefferson City's Losson Leonard has set his sights on a late model stock car championship after losing last year's battle to Gilliam, Mo., ace Rick Kimberling, who will be back to defend his title.

Hobby stock car champion Ed Knaebel of Jefferson City is expected to enter a 1965 Chevrolet in the late model stock car division this year, leaving the hobby stock title up for grabs.

In all, more than 70 cars are expected for opening night activities. The gates open at 5 p.m., warm-ups start at 6:30 p.m. and the first race will get started at 8 p.m.

Ticket prices remain unchanged from last year, $2.50 for adults and 50 cents for children age six through 11. Under six are admitted free and students and servicemen with ID's are admitted for half price.

In a major rule change at the Speedway, one of several this season, there will be no claim on hobby stock cars. The class, for novice drivers with modest investments, has a mandatory cast iron intake and exhaust manifold rule this year.

Points in all three classes will be determined by the amount of money a driver has earned. Races will continue through the first few weeks of August.

Statistics tell OU story

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The statistics reveal the reason Oklahoma and Iowa State are the two top teams in the Big Eight Conference baseball race.

Going into a three-game series at Kansas today and Saturday, the first-place Sooners, 9-3, had the league's top pitcher, Marty Knukler, and the leading batter, Mike Umfleet. Knukler, with a 2-0 record, had an earned run average of 1.65, and Umfleet was hitting .467.

Iowa State, the No. 2 team at 9-5, went into its home series with Missouri with Bruce Rasmussen the second leading pitcher and Del Ochsner the fourth. Rasmussen's record was 3-2 and ERA 1.76 and Ochsner's 4-0 and 1.96.

In other series this weekend, third-place Oklahoma State, 8-6, was host to Colorado and fourth-place Nebraska, 5-4, to Kansas State.

Oklahoma had the leading pitching staff. As a team, Sooner hurlers had yielded only an average of 2.50. Oklahoma State, at 3.92, was second and Iowa State, 3.98, third.

Kansas State's batting average of .317 was the best. Behind the Wildcats were Nebraska, .295, and Missouri, .290.

Oklahoma State led the league in fielding with a .962 average followed by Oklahoma's .956 and Colorado's

Expect fast Ky. Derby track

LOUISVILLE (AP) — "He's as honest as he can be; he always tries," says his owner. And Foolish Pleasure will try to beat 14 other 3-year-olds in the Kentucky Derby Saturday.

"We hope to win, but I'd be foolish to guarantee it," said owner John L. Greer, who has watched Foolish Pleasure win 10 of 11 lifetime starts including two major pre-Derby Stakes — the $100,000-added Flamingo and the $100,000-added Wood Memorial.

The Churchill Downs odds-maker listed Foolish Pleasure as the 9-5 favorite Thursday to win the first prize of $209,600 from a purse that will total $262,100 if all 15 start in the 101st running of the 1¼-mile Derby.

With no more rain, the track should be fast for the Derby. The weather forecast for today and Saturday called for cloudy and mild weather, with the temperature around 70 Saturday.

Post time is 5:32 p.m. EDT, with television coverage by ABC from 4-5 p.m.

Foolish Pleasure will start from the No. 3 post position under Jacinto Vasquez in the Derby, which calls for scale weights of 126 pounds.

John Galbreath's Prince Thou Art and Golden Chance Farm's Master Derby, expected to be Foolish Pleasure's toughest competition, both will start on the outside of the favorite.

Prince Thou Art, who upset Foolish Pleasure in the Florida Derby, will go from the No. 8 post under Braulio Baeza. He will run as part of an entry with Galbreath's Sylvan Place, a non-stakes winner who was second in the Florida Derby.

Sylvan Place, a 7-2 choice, will start from the No. 14 post and be ridden by Angel Cordero Jr., who won the 1974 Derby on Cannonade.

Master Derby has won his last five races, including the Louisiana Derby and the Blue Grass Stakes, and is listed as a 9-2 choice to make it six in a row Saturday. An off-track figure to help the chances of the son of Dust Commander, 1970 Derby winner, who will leave from the five post under Darrell McHargue.

Frank McMahon's Diabolo won the 1½-mile California Derby in a blazing 1:46 3-5 on a fast track at Golden Gate Fields. Laffit Pincay Jr., will be aboard again Saturday when the dark bay starts from the No. 13 slot.

Two other big stakes winners in the field are Arthur A. Selligson Jr.'s Avatar, winner of the Santa Anita Derby, and Bob Clayton's Promised City, who was first in the Arkansas Derby. An Arkansas Derby winner never has won the Kentucky Derby.

Bill Shoemaker, who will be trying to win his fourth Derby in 19 attempts, will ride Avatar out of the No. 10 slot, while Dave Whitte will ride Promised City from the outside post.

Roland Aristone Sr.'s Bombay Duck will start from the No. 15 post.

Others entered, their post positions and jockeys, were Max Gluck's Media, No. 1, Jean Cruguet, Mrs. and Mrs. Robert F. Roberts' Honey Mark, No. 2, Eddie Delahoussayer, John W. Mecom's Rushing Man, No. 4, James McKnight, Clarence Benjamin's Fashion Sale, No. 6, Bill Gavidia, Leggio, Wyble and Isbell's Bold Chapeau, No. 7, C.J. Alleman, Pedro A. Diaz' Gatch, No. 9, Julio Espinoza, and Jack Dreyfus' Round Stake, No. 12, Mike Hole.

Pettis County Post No. 16, The American Legion, will host a 7TH DISTRICT MEETING at the post hall, 16th & Thompson Blvd., on Sunday, May 4th, at 2 p.m. All members are urged to attend. Boys and Girls State candidates will be present. The post will also hold its REGULAR BUSINESS MEETING on Monday night, May 5th, at 7:30 p.m. in the Legion Hall. Aaron breaks Babe Ruth's RBI record

Hank Aaron won one for Milwaukee and lost another one for Babe Ruth.

While playing with the Atlanta Braves, Aaron went through exquisite pressure catching Ruth's home run total of 714. Since then, Aaron has built the proud record to 735.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston nipped Cleveland 7-6; Texas whipped Chicago 2-1; New York blanked Baltimore 5-0 and Kansas City beat California 11-10 in 13 innings.

The Milwaukee slugger knocked knucked in two runs to Report polygraph tests being used in Big 8

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—An Oklahoma City newspaper said today the Big Eight Conference is using polygraph tests in its investigations of recruiting infraction allegations.

In a story by Walt Jayroe, The Daily Oklahoman said at least one lie detector test was taken by a University of Oklahoma athlete during the conference's recent probe of Oklahoma State. The investigation led to the Stillwater school being penalized last March 1. Big Eight Commissioner Chuck Neinas would neither confirm or deny that the polygraphs are used by the conference.

He said the conference "has no firm policy" on the use of polygraph examinations. "We have had polygraph tests available to use in investigations," he said.

Neinas declined further comment on the story.

Jay Pfau, a sophomore and heavyweight wrestler at Oklahoma from Sidney, Mont., was quoted by The Oklahoman as saying he took the polygraph examination in February in Oklahoma City.

The paper quoted sources as saying that Pfau voluntarily took the test under Big Eight supervision and made charges against Oklahoma State in connection with that school's recruiting of him.

The charges were not substantiated by the Big Eight and did not appear as any part of the 11 official violations listed against the Cowboy football and wrestling teams.

Pfau was quoted as saying that Richard D. "Dick" Martin of the Big Eight office supervised the polygraph test which was conducted by a private investigative agency in Oklahoma City. Pfau also said the Big Eight paid his expenses from Norman.

arose "last semester. I think, sometime before going on Christmas vacation." However, he said he has not heard from the Big Eight since.

Ward, a 6-foot-5, 225-pound offensive tackle, said he presented some typewritten charges to a Big Eight official and that Sooners officials informed him he was to take a polygraph test in mid-February but the meeting was postponed.

The Oklahoman said that Ward's charges were against two Oklahoma State alums who tried to recruit him a year ago. The charges included alleged offers of a new car for only $600 and that his game tickets would be purchased for $600.

Guys and Dolls win tournament

In a match that took one hour and 40 minutes, Guys and Dolls defeated the Wilskimmers, 21-11, 18-21, 21-16 to claim the Sedalia Recreation Department's Co-educational Volleyball Tournament championship Thursday night in Liberty Park's Convention Hall.

Guys and Dolls upended the Foxy Demo's, 21-6, 21-16, in the semifinals, while the Wilskimmers won over the Spartans, 21-8, 21-19, to move into the finals.

The tournament wrapped up the league season.

2 share 1st-round lead

HOUSTON (AP) "One of these days in this state...." Lee Trevino let the sentence trail off.

It's one of his fondest hopes to win a golf tournament in his native Texas. It hasn't happened yet.

"It's really tough to win in your home state," Trevino said. "You know, you have so many friends in the gallery, lots of friends and people pulling for you and it puts extra pressure on you."

At 68 were Lou Graham, Don Bies, John Schroeder, Bob Shaw, Joe Inman, Mike Wynn, Artie McNickle, Larry Nelson and Bruce Crampton, a former Houston Open winner.

Defending titleholder Dave

Hill struggled to a 73 and Arnold Palmer took a 74 after some familiar putting problems. "I missed a two-foot birdie putt on my first hole and that just kind of set the pattern for the day," said Palmer.

As usual, he had a massive gallery of followers Thursday, many of them of Mexican-American heritage.

"There's more Mexicans than whites in my gallery because more Mexicans are out of work," Trevino said after his six-under-par 66 had given him a share of the lead with Australian David Graham in the first round of the $150,000 Houston Open Golf Tournament.

"I like this course," Trevino said of the new, lush, 6,929-yard Woodlands Country Club layout that features tight, pine-forest lined fairways and greens guarded by 91 sandtraps and 12 lakes and ponds. "You have to work the ball. You have to hit it where you're aiming."

Jerry McGee, winner of the Pensacola Open just two weeks ago, birdied his first four holes and headed a group tied at 67. Also at that figure were Dale Douglass, Eddie Pearce and rookie Alan Tapie.

BOONVILLE, MO.

Why Detroit's engineers are secretly praising Volkswagen's Rabbit.

One thing about the men of the engineering profession: they give credit where credit is due. Which may explain all the nice letters and phone calls we've received from Detroit since our new Rabbit has been out. Why all the praise?

93 miles per hour.

A Rabbit is very fast. And although we obviously don't recommend 93 mph (please obey all speed limits), it is reassuring to know as you're about to get onto a hectic expressway, that a Rabbit has the power for great acceleration. From 0 to 50 in only 8.2 seconds. That's quicker than a Monza 2 + 2.

38 miles per gallon.

A Rabbit is very thrifty. In the recent 1975-model Federal Environmental Protection Agency fuel economy tests, the Rabbit averaged 38 miles to the gallon on the highway. It averaged a nifty 24 in tougher stop-and-go city traffic.

As big inside as some mid-size cars.

The Rabbit is a sub-compact sized car. That's on the outside. Open the door and it's a different story. 80% of the space in the car is devoted to functional room. There's actually more head and leg room inside than in some mid-size cars.

You get this feeling of roominess immediately, as you stretch out behind the wheel and look out through the huge front windshield. Visibility is incredible.

The main engineering feat that makes all this room possible is our revolutionary transverse engine, or stated more simply, an engine that is mounted sideways. Besides adding space, placing the engine in this manner, and slanting it, has a lot to do with why the Rabbit gets such good gas mileage. For now you have a very low silhouette front end which means lower wind resistance, which means better gas mileage. The Rabbit comes only one way, as a Hatchback. And you don't pay a penny more for that extra door. In addition to the 2-door model shown, there is a 4-door available. Four doors plus a Hatchback. That's a lot of ins and outs in one car.

How we got it to handle so easily.

The best way to describe driving a Rabbit is that it just feels right. The rack-and-pinion steering, designed exclusively for the Rabbit, allows you to feel in complete control, especially on fast, tight turns.

Another VW exclusive, an independent stabilizer rear axle, means independent wheel travel for more riding comfort and added safety on rough roads.

As is true on only two Detroit cars, the Eldorado and Toronado, the Rabbit has front-wheel drive for road-hugging ability. The firm and sporty ride of the car is enhanced by rigid unitized body/chassis construction, controlled spring and shock rates and longer suspension travel.

Owner's Security Blanket.

To make sure your Rabbit lives a lively and a carefree life, it's backed by the most advanced car coverage plan in the automotive industry: The Volkswagen Owner's Security Blanket with exclusive Computer Analysis.†

All for $2,999*

Lately, a lot of automotive executives have been giving speeches on "the car of the future." They see it as being small, low-priced, but with increased interior dimensions and more economical performance.

Ladies and gentlemen of the automotive industry, your car of the future, our Rabbit, is here today.

And it will only cost you $2,999 to try it out.

Happy days are here again.

The Fiat X1/9. Winner of Motor Trend's 1975 Award for Styling.

To buy this car for looks alone would be to sell it short.

You see, like all Fiats, this mid-engine X1/9 handles exceptionally well. It has a fully-synchromeshed, 4-speed gear box, 4-wheel disc brakes, and all-independent suspension.

And because it's the creation of Nuccio Bertone, designer of

The above cows have 179 calves at side, balance springers. The above bulls are all eligible to register. These cows are an outstanding set of mother cows with a lot of size and in good farm condition. The Calhouns have spent many years developing this fine herd of cattle. Make plans to attend this large herd dispersal.

Role as anchorman a dream come true

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Hughes Rudd grinned when asked if he agreed with ex-newsman H. Allen Smith's claim that falling head-first into an empty cistern at age 5 adequately prepares one for a journalist's life.

"Just about," said the Texas-born "CBS Morning

News" anchorman. "It's always struck me that people kind of drift into journalism, at least people of my generation."

Oddly enough, Rudd, a crusty but kindly man who has anchored the CBS show since August 1973, didn't drift into journalism. He says he always wanted to be in the business and started while in high school as a summer copy boy on a newspaper in his home town of Waco.

He said it was a traditional kind of newspaper where scribes were known to drink, set fire to wastebaskets and hurl typewriters out windows.

"I've worked on four papers, and I was never on one that wasn't like that," he observed. "Well, maybe not the Minneapolis tribune.
It was pretty much of a businesslike paper compared to the others. Not as much fun, either."

While TV has made him
what you'd call a star, Rudd, 53, doesn't exactly have the broadcast background of most of today's TV anchormen.

He didn't even get into electronic journalism until he was 38, starting as a CBS news writer with the aid of a former United Press reporter, Walter Cronkite, whom Rudd knew during five postwar years on the Kansas City Star.

He studied three years at the University of Missouri, but quit when World War II began to become an Army artillery spotter pilot. He was wounded twice, once by German fighters, once by ground fire.

Then came the Kansas City Star, a year on the Minneapolis Tribune, two years at Stanford University on a creative writing fellowship, a year as what he calls "an academic bum," and a brief and souring experience as public relations man back in Kansas City.

His credits also include one year as editor of the Rock Springs, Wyo., "Daily Rocket," a year he fondly remembers.

"I never had so much fun in my life," he recalled.
"We had an absentee publisher, so I was the whole banana. We could do any damn thing we wanted."

Rudd quit the paper after a dispute with the publisher.
The dispute, he said, concerned local politics and an expose of 11 bawdyhouses operating in the community.

He decamped to New Mexico to write articles and fiction under a foundation grant — Rudd may be the only known anchorman

CBS anchorman

Hughes Rudd has anchored "CBS Morning News" since August, 1973.
Now 53, he got his start in electronic journalism at 38 as a CBS news writer and worked in network bureaus at home and abroad before taking on his present job — which gets under way

daily at the exacting hour of 3 a.m.
Rudd says he always wanted to be a journalist. His career began when he was still in high school and worked as summer copy boy on a paper in his home town of Waco, Tex.

Lee lass

How old is Lena Zavaroni who was on The Carol Burnett Show last November? — L.
Y., Lono, Ark.

Lena is 10. Despite her name, which sounds Italian, she's from Scotland.

He says he'll eventually get to those projects, but admits he's taken the precaution of getting an advance on anticipated royalties.

"Oh certainly," he said in his raspy drawl. "Spent it years ago on riotous living.
And now the (expletives deleted) want the books. They threaten to sue and ever-thing else."

Rudd grinned broadly
when asked how he'd view
the life of a television anchorman were he still a rowdy newspaperman writing for the Kansas City Star.

"Oh, I'd laugh myself silly, of course," he said.
"And I certainly wouldn't miss a single installment of the Mary Tyler Moore show."

published by the Paris Review — before returning to Kansas City.

He continued writing but also went into business as a producer of industrial films.
He got sick of that, called up Cronkite, and has been with CBS ever since, laboring in its Moscow, Bonn, Chicago and Atlanta bureaus and reporting from such places as Vietnam and Moscow.

He was knocking about the United States, doing
human interest pieces, when tapped in 1973 to replace John Hart as anchorman on the hourly
"CBS Morning News."

Rudd is also involved in book matters — he's supposed to write two, neither about TV — and has signed contracts with two publishers.

The television listings printed by The Sedalia Democrat-Capital are furnished by television stations in advance of publication. Last-minute changes in scheduling, therefore, may not be shown. The absence of an individual channel's listings indicates failure by the station to furnish a schedule.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Maybe the trouble with the world is that there's a shortage of blonde movie queens.

Look around. Today's reigning sexpots are all dark-haired — Raquel Welch and Ann Margret and Cher. Even Barbra Streisand. About the only honest blonde we have today is Connie Stevens and Connie says they're trying to talk her out of her bloneness.

Connie was at an affair recently and was seated at a table with Sue Mengers, one of Hollywood's top agents. After a while, Miss Mengers turned to Connie and said, "The only thing wrong with you is you should be a brunette." Needless to say, Connie stuck by her guns — and her hair.

She had tried dark hair once for a picture. She didn't like it. Nobody else did, either. She's one of those girls who was born to be blonde, obviously.

She was also born to entertain. She says she prefers acting to working night clubs — if she has a good part. But she's fortunate. Unlike so many actors who do nothing but twiddle their careers while waiting for that good part, Connie has her nightclub work to fall back on.

She says doing the clubs — Vegas, Reno, Tahoe — is gratifying. It should be, because she commands one of the highest salaries going. But she doesn't mean the money as much as the pleasure of an immediate audience response. And she believes that nightclub work is becoming more creative all the time — no longer can a nightclub star just get up there and sing but he or she must put together a creative act.

Her big hope for a smashing acting success was the TV movie, "The Sex Symbol." That blew up in her face when the network got cold feet over some of the footage in that film and cancelled it, then edited it down and finally aired it in a chopped-up, cut-down version.

"Because it was such an edited farce," Connie says, "it really hurt my career. They cut an hour out of it so it was bound to suffer accordingly. Something's got to go."

Somehow, she got a print of the uncut version and is currently showing that to friend. The uncut version was sold to European theaters and is a smash over there. That helps salve her wounds somewhat but it isn't the same as if it had been shown uncut here.

Playing in "The Sex Symbol" — in which she more or less was playing Marilyn Monroe — was one of her great ambitions. She had long wanted to do it and she did. To that extent, the film was satisfying but it didn't lead to the big, gaudy parts she had hoped. Instead, the Hollywood producers still want to stick her in light, frothy comedies.

"I play comedy," she says, "because those are the roles they give me but basically I am not a funny person. Marlo (Thomas) and Suzy (Pleshette), my best friends, say that underneath it all I'm a very serious brunette."

She's also a very serious mother. She and her two daughters, Joely and Tricia, seem to have a good relationship. The girls, six and seven, kept running into the room while we were talking and Connie showed them a bit of motherly interest before shooing them out again.

They go with her wherever she works. She says they know her entire act by heart. And she calls them "good friends."

She carefully regulates the television they see, allowing them a few hours a day at the most. She tries to keep them away from the more violent programs.

"But," she says, "I made the mistake of letting them watch me in 'The Sex Symbol.' It created a problem for us. They had questions and we talked about it. But they cried and it disturbed them."

"One of the hardest things for them in that film was the relationship with the father. They don't see their father (Eddie Fisher) that much and they adore him."

She says she has no plans for another marriage, although she believes in the institution.

"It's not for me right now," she says. "I like my life the way it is. Marriage involves a lot of areas — love, children, companionship. I have a lot of those things already so I don't see marriage in my future, at least not at the present time."

Her idea of the men she would have liked to have met is not what you'd expect from a platinum blonde. She says she would love to have known Einstein. Among living men, she points to people like heart specialist Dr. Michael DeBakey and astronaut Neil Armstrong as her heroes.

"I admire men who go into unknown worlds," she says. "Some one who goes where angels do not tread. I'd like to sit down and rap with the Pope. And I'd have liked to have met Hitler. Say what you want to about him, the man was a phenomenon — he changed the world."

She may not change the world but she's changed herself. She came up, she says, "from 'a rotten childhood' to affluence and fame. As a kid, she was fat and insecure and quiet.

"I was alone all my life," she says. "My problem was to find people to latch on to. I had too many decisions to make and ached for somebody to talk to."

Now she has her daughters. They're still only children but she talks to them. After they were born — they are only a year apart — she was out of the business for 2½ years, seeing them through their infancy.

"I did nothing for those 2½ years," she says, "and I didn't miss it."

But she couldn't stay away any longer. It's in her blood, this business of acting and singing. She moved back and forth — movies to Broadway, Broadway to clubs — and now her career is in full bloom again. She is recording for the first time in a long time.

Impossible task

Why was Mission: Impossible cancelled? Does Peter Graves have any future TV series plans? Is he married? Where can I write him? — S.M.B., Framingham, Mass.

Mission: Impossible had a long TV run and it simply ran its course. "The Dead Man on the Run" TV movie Graves recently appeared in was a pilot for a series which, if it sells, will be completely filmed in New Orleans. Peter, who is the brother of James Arness, is married. Write him at Paramount, 5451 Marathon Street, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Mystery Story

Can you track down a story for me? I seem to recall, many years ago, seeing a story about a little boy who is kidnapped. He was so bad that the kidnapers had to pay the father to take him back. — Mary Prince, Chicago, Ill.

You are describing Mark Twain's delightful short story "The Ransom of Red Chief," which inspired many a movie and TV version or a variation of it.

The mark of Zorro

Who played Zorro in the old TV version? — Sue Belec, Gurnee, Ill.

Guy Williams was Zorro in the Walt Disney series. Frank Langella played him recently in a TV movie.

Name that girl

I saw a segment of Ironside with an actress I think was named Barbara Allen. I know I've seen her in a TV movie with Bette Davis. I'd like a picture of her, if possible. — Genevieve Harley, Chicago, Ill.

Her full name is Sian Barbara Allen. She is under contract to Universal Studios. She was in a TV movie with Miss Davis. It was "Scream, Pretty Peggy." For a long time, Sian was Richard Thomas' very steady girl. For a picture, write her at Universal, Universal City, Calif. 91608.
